deView electronics announces acquisition of REPTRax Inc.

Transaction joins world wide security company, deView electronics, with the rapidly growing REPTRax community to become the national standard in healthcare vendor credentialing.

Lewisville, Texas – deView electronics, a global provider of imaging and sensing security solutions has announced the acquisition of REPTRax, Inc. a leader in healthcare vendor credentialing and hospital policy enforcement.

Terry Louthan, Product Manager for deView electronics stated, “What attracted deView to REPTRax was complete agreement in principle; that for any type of security solution to be effective, the so called ‘community’ must play a role”. The rapid adoption of REPTRax’s no charge to the hospital web based solution is due to the ability to address vendor credentialing, supply chain control, and vendor policy enforcement. Terry explained further, “The market has made it abundantly clear that REPTRax has delivered a breakthrough solution for healthcare, and we are combining the deView infrastructure with REPTRax technology to accelerate the deployment and support of the REPTRax solution.”

“We have identified that hospitals, Group Purchasing Organizations, and the vendor community are looking for a viable vendor management platform that is positioned both financially and strategically to become the national registry for healthcare vendor credentialing. deView’s global presence in the security industry provides our platform an extensible infrastructure that will enable REPTRax to become the de facto standard in healthcare vendor credentialing,” said Peter Sheehan President and Founder of REPTRax, Inc.

Current and future members of the REPTRax community will continue to enjoy the REPTRax solution in its current form. Development plans which will further enhance the ‘community’ look to accelerate as a result of the acquisition.
